Drager delay illegal

by David Striker

The Judical Committee of the Students' Society ruled unanimously Friday that Students' Society President Paul Drager's delaying of an open meeting on a new constitution was illegal.

The new constitution, published in the Daily on September 26, and a petition calling for an open meeting for October 11, in which the document would be discussed, was submitted to Drager October 4. Drager, however, called the meeting for October 25, instead of October 11, and in the meantime, prepared a new constitution of his own, which he planned to introduce at the same meeting. Arts and science Students' Council representative Will Hoffman, declaring the action to be illegal, took the matter to the Judicial Committee.

Hoffman argued that petitioners for an open meeting have the right to decide the time and place, and that the president is obliged to abide by the decision. He demanded that the meeting, when called, consider only the constitution published September 26 and that Drager's constitution, and also any sub-amendments other than those published October 4, be excluded from the discussion.

The Judical Committee's ruling was the following:

1) that petitioners calling for an open meeting have the right to decide the time and place, within reasonable limits. The committee supported Hoffman's contention that to allow the president to delay a meeting could lead to possible harm; for example, the meeting could be delayed till the issue had become insignificant or had already been decided in some other way, or the meeting might be called at a time when few students could attend;

2) that the open meeting will be held October 25 at 1 p.m. in the Union ballroom. The constitution published September 26, with an October 4 sub-amendment, will be the only topic considered.

3) The new constitution and the sub-amendment will be recirculated the day before or the day of the meeting, either in the Daily or separately, because of the time elapsed since their original publication.

Chinese exchange students are greeted at the airport by Chinese embassy officials and Canadian students.

Students arrive from China

by Jan Wong

Ten students from China, participants in the Canada-China Student Exchange program, arrived in Montreal Friday afternoon. They were met at the airport by staff of the Chinese embassy and several students from McGill, including two who will be going to China as part of the program. After an hour-long stop-over at Montreal, the students flew to Ottawa, where they will be briefed by the Chinese embassy.

The ten students, six men and four women, will be studying in Canada for one or possibly two years. Five will be studying English language and literature at York University and the University of Toronto. The other five will be studying French language and literature at Laval University and McGill University.

The two studying at McGill — Chia Chin-feng and Chang Jui-fang, both 21 — will live in residence and are expected to begin their studies here soon. Chia studied French at Peking University, and Chang studied French at Futan University, in Shanghai.

The Chinese students are the first to participate in the exchange program. Next year, 10 more Chinese students are expected in Canada to study physical and biological sciences. All their expenses will be paid by the Chinese government. The 20 Canadian students in the exchange program will leave for China next month.

CANDIDATES DEBATES

On recognizing Guinea-Bissau

"From the historic moment of the proclamation of the State of Guinea-Bissau, the authorities and organs of the Portuguese colonial state which exercise certain, political, military and administrative power in our territory have become illegal and their actions null and void."

—From the National People's Assembly Proclamation, September 24, 1973.

by Mtshana M. Ncube

The Republic of Guinea -Bissau is now a fact. Nine years of protests and demonstrations, and twelve years of armed guerrilla war against Portuguese colonialism and oppression and against imperialist domination has brought the people of Guinea-Bissau to an important stage in their struggle for liberation and social transformation.

The official announcement was made on September 24, 1973, by the National People's Assembly which was then meeting at Medina Boe, one of the first Portuguese bases to be overrun by the liberation forces of the Partido Africano da Independencia de Guine e Cabo Verde (PAIGC). The National People's Assembly is one of the revolutionary institutions for which elections had been held earlier in the liberated areas. It was at the meeting of September 23rd and 24th that the People's Assembly formally proclaimed the founding of the Republic of Guinea-Bissau, adopted a constitution, elected a Council of State, and a Council of Commissioners. Luis Cabral is President of the 15 member Council of State, and Francisco Mendes is Chairman of the Council of State Commissioners. The People's Assembly also confirmed Aristides Pereira as Secretary-General since the assassination of Amilcar Cabral by the Portuguese on January 20, 1973.

To observers of the general African liberation struggle, the proclamation of the Republic of Guinea-Bissau came as no surprise. Indeed, it had been the subject of informal discussions between Amilcar Cabral and the delegations of some members of the United Nations when the former made what was to be his last appearance before that body on October 15, 1972 to present the case of the just struggle of the people of Guinea-Bissau. The PAIGC was sounding out sympathetic nations on the question of recognizing the new state if and when proclaimed. At the time, there was an indication that 70 countries or more might grant recognition to the new state and government within a reasonable time after the date of proclamation.

The PAIGC took up these exploratory talks from a position of strength. Two-thirds of the territory had been brought under the direct control of the PAIGC through its military wing, the People's Revolutionary Armed Forces; and four-fifths of Guinea-Bissau's population of 800,000 already lived in this liberated territory, administered by five-member political councils established in each village.

It was in the hope of arresting this revolutionary advance of the struggle of the people of Guinea-Bissau that the Portuguese had assassinated Amilcar Cabral. Because of its failure to comprehend the political and organizational structure of all true revolutionary armed struggles for national liberation, Portugal was calculating that the death of Cabral would bring about the disintegration of the PAIGC and the struggle itself.

But the structure of the PAIGC, like that of any party or movement that extols the organizational principles of Marxism-Leninism, was able to sustain the blow resulting from the loss of its leader and to continue the war against Portugal. Indeed soon after the assassination, the PAIGC confidently announced that its plan to proclaim the Republic of Guinea-Bissau would be executed before the end of 1973. That promise was fulfilled on September 24. The proclamation added another leverage in the struggle of the people of Guinea-Bissau to end Portugal's occupation of 30 per cent of their territory.

As of Tuesday, October 16, 62 countries have recognized the new state of Guinea-Bissau. Among those missing from the list as the reader will have guessed, are the United States, Britain, West Germany, France, Canada and South Africa. The new state is now moving to seek membership in the United Nations and the Organization of African Unity. At the time of writing, on Thursday, October 18, many of the states which have already recognised Guinea-Bissau were drafting a resolution to be presented to the Plenary Session of the United Nations General Assembly "welcoming the new Republic of Guinea-Bissau among the community of nations." It must be noted that this is not a sponsorship of Guinea-Bissau for membership in the United Nations, but merely an act of solidarity. The actual sponsorship should be forthcoming.

These diplomatic sorties have opened up a new front at this new stage of the struggle of the people of Guinea; they provide the means by which the Republic of Guinea-Bissau can clearly separate its friends from its foes.

At the rate recognition has been granted by a large number of nations, it is quite clear that very soon any continued withholding of such recognition by any nation will have to be seen for what it is — a hostile act against a people who have convincingly demonstrated that Portugal now controls only 30 per cent of the territory and less than 20 per cent of the population of Guinea-Bissau; that Portugal has a long history of crimes against colonial peoples; and that Portugal is, and has always been, an arm of imperialist interests in Africa. The case of the Republic of Guinea-Bissau is so clear-cut that even legal positivists cum imperialists, for whom effective control of a given territory is the only criterion for recognizing a government, cannot make a case for non-recognition.

Canada was very quick to recognize the military junta in Chile ostensibly on the ground that the junta had de facto control of the territory. If this were the test, and Canada is to be consistent, it ought to have been among the first to grant recognition to the new state of Guinea-Bissau and its government. However, Canada's involvement in the web of imperialism through NATO and through multinational corporate investments in the economies of Portugal's colonies dictates her present attitude on the question.

The proclamation of independence has both a military and a political basis. There has been both a quantitative and a qualitative growth of the People's Revolutionary Armed Forces. Not only is there an increase in the number of trained personnel, and a growth of the militia, but the PAIGC has now acquired sophisticated weapons. In the past six months PAIGC's liberation forces shot down over 20 Portuguese planes.

The air superiority which Portugal once boasted of has been shattered. As a consequence, recently the liberation forces have been able to shell Bissau, the major urban centre, at will. PAIGC has held back an all-out attack on the cities because they do not want the loss of many innocent lives. The strategy now is to bring slow pressure on the Portuguese forces guarding the cities.

The political basis for the proclamation is that the PAIGC will now be able to receive direct economic political, and military aid from countries with which Guinea-Bissau establishes diplomatic relations. Further, the reorganization of revolutionary institutions necessitated by statehood will permit the PAIGC to expand and improve the social and economic structure set up during the struggle. Schools, hospitals, agricultural cooperatives and other productive relations can now receive greater attention as aid comes in. All these possibilities dramatize the real significance of the victory of liberation forces.

The significance of victory is even greater when seen from the point of the economic resources saved from Portuguese plunder. By forcing the Portuguese out of 80% of the territory, the people of Guinea-Bissau have prevented the exhaustion of their timber resources and have thwarted Portuguese plans to exploit the country's substantial bauxite reserves and Exxon's search for oil.

The birth of the Republic of Guinea-Bissau is a momentous victory for all those who support the principle of freedom and equality among people and between nations. The victory was won by the people of Guinea-Bissau through persistent armed struggle. But by no means is this the end of the struggle. The remnants of Portuguese forces must be driven out of the country, whereupon the energies of the people will be directed fully to the on-going process of reconstructing society and serving the needs of all.

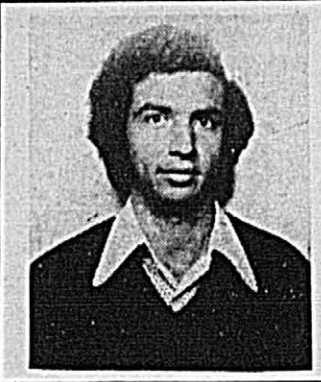
ENGINEERING



DAVID MILLER
B. Eng. Elect. U2

EXPERIENCE:
1972-73
1) E.I.C. Vice Chairman
2) I.E.E.E. and E.E.S. Secretary
3) Class President
4) Course Evaluation

1973-74
1) E.I.C. Chairman
2) E.E.S. Treasurer
3) E.U.S. Rep and Class President

PLATFORM:
— To make sure that the interests of the Engineering Students are recognized by the Students' Society.
— To see that the Engineering Students get something worthwhile for the $24/student taken by the Students' Society. If this is not possible, it is my opinion that the Engineering Undergraduate Society can provide the Engineering Student with a lot more for that money.

JIM RICHARDS

(Photo and pensketch unavailable at press time)

DAVID STEIN
B. Eng. Civil U3

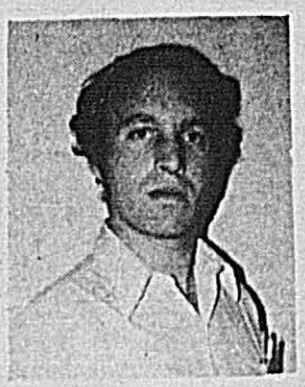
PLATFORM:
This campaign is based on a very simple principle. I feel that the engineers must get better value for the $24.00 that we pay in Students' Society fees. Only $5.00 of the $24.00 is returned to the Engineering Undergraduate Society. In general E.U.S. sponsored activities are more appreciated by engineers. I propose that more clubs and activities should be established and funded by the Students' Society. These must have greater relevance for engineers. I propose that a greater part of the $24.00 be returned to the E.U.S. so more activities can be directly organized and run by engineers. For a strong engineering vote on Council, for responsible representation, for the expansion of engineering oriented programs, VOTE DAVID STEIN on October 17th.

GRADUATE STUDIES

ANDREW E. FENUS
M.L.S. II

QUALIFICATIONS:
Queen's University:
— General Departmental Student Council Representative, 1970-72
— Faculty Council, 1971-72
— Faculty Curriculum Committee, 1971-72
— Revenue Treasurer & Work Schedule Manager for "Science '44 Co-op" (This is a student operated residential cooperative in Kingston with capital assets of about $1 million, revenue over $200,000 annually, and with about 300 residents) 1971-72
McGill University:
— Executive Secretary of the Post-Graduate Students' Society (PGSS), 1972-73
— Faculty Council (Graduate Studies) 1973-
— Student Senator, (term commencing March 1973-74)

The graduate student on campus and this includes collectively the Post-Graduate Students' Society (PGSS) headquartered at Thomson House seems to be grossly misinterpreted and misrepresented if not ignored by the Students' Society. This in the past and even now has led to a breakdown in communication between PGSS and the Students' Society, eg. 1-G Education membership to Thomson House, as well as NOT being informed (where was our representation?) last year that large sums of money were available to the various student societies on campus. This was and still is sorely needed money to renovate Thomson House. Therefore we need open and conscious representation, a "watch-dog" in effect, to the Students' Society.
I offer no ideological platform like the Popular Student Front which seems to dictate, yes that's the word, its cliches and slogans like "down with free enterprise" etc. I ask you: Where would Thomson House be without free enterprise in the form of that evil spirited BAR. Nor do I offer you any concrete promises like "pie in the sky after you die".
I only offer myself as a candidate to represent the graduate students and PGSS in a fair, rational, pragmatic, conscientious, and open manner. I shall also be open to the prospect of fruitful negotiations with the Students' Society in order to obtain a fair and equitable share of our own student fees.
Please Vote. Please vote FENUS. Thank you.

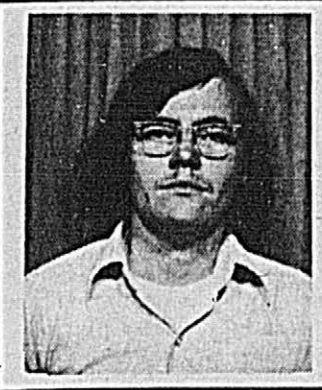


IAN HYMAN
M. Sc. 1

In 1968-69 I served as External Vice-President of McGill Students' Society and was a member of the first contingent of students to be seated on the Senate. As a result of my experience I am convinced of the correctness of the view put forward by the Popular Student Front (PSF), that there can be no progress in student affairs until we end the present subordination of the Students' Society to the Administration. The interests of McGill students are very much opposed to those of the monopoly capitalists who control the Administration, and we need a democratic defence organization capable of defending our interests against it.

It is very much in our interests to build unity between the students and all other people who are subjected to the attacks of the monopoly capitalists and their governments. In struggles such as the recent one between the building service workers and the Administration, Students' Council should take a stand of strongly supporting the working people and doing everything to assist them. On Council I will uphold the four basic principles of the Popular Student Front as set forward in the pensketches of the other two PSF candidates—Anna Campagna and Gayle Sinclair.

ARTS AND SCIENCE



GARY BURGESS
B. Sc. U3

EXPERIENCE:
— Majors Mathematics—Computer Science
— Member of the Student Government Design Group for Dawson CEGEP

PLATFORM:
— Our new constitution should provide equal representation for Arts and Science students
— Encourage prompt completion of the Students' Society Pub
— Improve badly needed communication between Council Reps and students in Arts and Science. This is to be accomplished through the A.S.U.S. sponsored newspaper—the FREE PRESS.
— Students' Council should take a stand on the Day Care issue.

— All Councillors from Arts and Science are members of the A.S.U.S. executive. I would recommend strong constitutional changes for the A.S.U.S. These changes are to ensure equal representation from both faculties. At present there are 12 members on this executive—only 2 are from Science!
— Provide some badly needed Common Sense to Students' Council.
On Wednesday, October 24th
VOTE GARY BURGESS

ANNA CAMPAGNA
B.A. U3

I am running for election as a supporter of the Popular Student Front (PSF) and uphold its view that there can be no progress in student affairs until we end the present subordination of the Students' Society to the Administration. The interests of McGill students are very much opposed to those of the monopoly capitalists who control the Administration, and we need a democratic defence organization capable of defending our interests against it. We must also build unity between the students and all other people who are subjected to the attacks of monopoly capitalists. And in struggles such as the recent one between the building service workers and the Administration, Students' Council should strongly support the working people and do everything to assist them.

On Council I will uphold the basic PSF principles that:
(1) The students have the right to democratically determine their own affairs and no one has the right to interfere;
(2) It is just to oppose fascism, racism and imperialism, and to organize against these evils;
(3) There should be democratic contention of ideas among the students, and no one trend should arbitrarily monopolize everything;
(4) It is just to be open and aboveboard in student affairs and unjust to intrigue and conspire.

MICHAEL JOHNSON

There are two main problems in the Students' Society. First, we are not sufficiently informed of the business of Students' Council and the executive. Secondly, we are not encouraged and not given the opportunity to participate in day to day decisions made in the Students' Society. We have lost interest in the Students' Society because we rarely have the chance to exercise control. Our first priority is to make the student government a structure within the Students' Society and not outside of it. This can only be accomplished through a new structure and not simply by the election of officials who appear to be representative.

PLATFORM:
• Three more Arts and Science representatives on Council.
• Ensure effective financial management of Students' Society funds.
• Support for innovative constitutional changes geared toward returning control of the Students' Society to the students.
• A Daily reporter should write short reports on all business of Students' Council. This should include a record of who voted for what.
• Agendas of Council meetings should be printed on the day of each meeting.
• More support for faculty and departmental groups.
• Extend library services and hours.
• The Students' Society should develop a campus-wide service providing classnotes for all possible courses.
• Support for a McGill day care service.
• Concerts and dances should be sponsored regularly and frequently.
• The Students' Society should sponsor a co-op vegetarian food store.

RICHARD MARKUS

More news from the touch front

by Oleg Zadorozny
and
Michel Zelnick

The countdown begins. Zero hour is near. The playoff hopes of many touchfootball teams hinge on the outcome of crucial games to be played in this, the last week of the season. For those teams with their backs against the wall, it's do or die — so when the going gets though, the tough gets going.

Our selection for game of the week honours, goes to the clash of section V powerhouses, the Greater Omentum (Med) vs. the defending champs, Eng III, at Molson Stadium tonight at 5:15.

The infamous Lower Campus Corral.

The Greater Omentum, the silent ones, boast a swarming defense and a breakaway offense. Quiet and reserved off the field, they are relentless and aggressive on it, rarely giving their opponents a chance to score, as their four straight convincing victories would attest. Their well fingered receivers drop few passes, while the intimidating fashion in which they defend is most devastating. Their 31-0 blanking of the Pimps (Sc) last Thursday demonstrated a well-balanced and belligerent attack. The Omentum are good ... very good.

But so are Eng. III, Last year's champs. Like the Omentum, they rely on a solid team effort, rather than on individual theatrics. Their more than capable quarterback has both the discipline necessary to play the short game, and the ability to hit the breakaway receivers at any time. The Eng III "No Name" defense which is anchored by celebrity Mark, is coming off two shutout performances. The defenders are well primed going into today's game, and are certain to be, in a word, ruthless.

So for those who enjoy a good game, this match is for you. For those who look strictly for names, read a phone book.

In a game played last Friday, the Debitors (Mmgt) overcame both field conditions and the university's automatic leaf picker-upper (the pride of McGill's mechanized maintenance service) to best the Best (sc) 30-0 at the Lower Campus Corral. The Debitors increased their undefeated record to four and oh, continuing their unmolested romp through Section II.

ZZZZZZZ: Despite their crushing victory, the Debitor's mood was sombre, due to a second half knee injury to rugged little Richard Simon, sustained while spectacularly snaring a TD pass....This week's Golden Hands award goes to J(Jim, Jack, John, Jorge?) May who made the wildest TD snatch of the season for the Architects last Thursday. The ball first tipped off the hands of a teammate, danced through the arms of defending Team Lawyers, before finally landing in the outstretched palms of the streaking May, who pranced most gracefully into the end zone. All for naught, as it turned out, with Team Law prevailing 12-9.....

In soccer action last Wednesday, the Mezuzahs lost a heartbreaker to the Pills 17-3. It was a hard pill to swallow (har, har, har).....The playoff schedule for football will begin on or about next Thursday. Team captains are responsible for contacting the intramural office for specifics.....

Redmen clinch first place

by Elliott Pap

Yesterday afternoon in beautiful Trois-Rivieres, the McGill Redmen clinched first place by defeating the Universite du Quebec a Trois-Rivieres Patriots 37-10. It was a very close game in the first half. In fact, the Redmen were losing 10-9 at half time. But the second half was all McGill as the REdmen decided to play football instead of pinochle or tiddleywinks or whatever it was they were doing in that first half.

"The first half was a nightmare," admitted coach Charlie Baillie at the conclusion of the contest. "We should be glad that there are two halves in a game."

"That lousy first half," said Ray Baillie, "made the second half exciting."

No excuses were offered for the awful first half because there weren't any. The Redmen simply stank. They weren't playing ball and UQTR was.

"They wanted to win badly," C. Baillie said, "while we just weren't prepared mentally."

The game began alright as the Redmen took an eight to nothing lead on a Ross Brooks touchdown reception and two Ron Kelly points. The Patriots came back with a field goal on a drive featuring numerous McGill penalties. On the ensuing series, Kelly booted another single. Redmen 9, Patriots 3. Nothing to worry about, right?

Wrong. Why? I'll tell you why.

Patriot running back Luc Vincent is sweeping to the right on his own 20-yard line. The McGill defence comes up to stop Luc's progress. Luc stops before he is stopped and throws the ball to a wide open Denis Trepanier. And Theyre off! Trepanier leads by a length. The Redmen are close on his heels. Trepanier leads by three lengths. The Redmen aren't so close to his heels anymore. To make a short story even shorter, Trepanier scores. Redmen trail 10-9.

The Trois-Rivieres crowd was ecstatic. They smelled victory. Unfortunately, they forgot that their beloved Patriots had to play the second half. Unfortunately, their beloved Patriots also forgot that very important fact as the McGill Redmen came to life and destroyed the Patriots, their dreams, their fans and the dreams of their fans.

Dis Auders, McGill's top QB, sat out the first half in favour of back-up Tony Pietroniro and the flu. However, C. Billie decided to insert Auders, flu and all, to get that needed experience in the game and to stabilize the Redmen offence. Fortunately for the Redmen and their fans, this very strategic move paid off.

Auders proceeded to lead the Redmen on four consecutive touchdown marches and put the game far far out of reach. Fullback Don Cowie plowed over from the five. Halfback Mike Chambers scampered in from the thirteen. Cowie plowed in again, this time from the four. Cowie plowed in yet again, and again it was from the four. Ron Kelly converted each major and the final score of 37-10 was thus reached.

PAP CRAP: The field at Trois-Rivieres had to be seen to be believed. It was only 100 yards long with almost non-existant end zones On one end, there was an 8-yard end zone while at the other end, near the flag, the measurement was an overwhelming two! Unbelieveable. Not only that, all converts had to be kicked at the same end because the ball would disappear over a fence onto a highway at the other end....Mike Nanne wants all to know that Sal Bando is his hero and that, yes, Lou Nanne of the Minnesota North Stars is his brother....The bus ride home from Trois-Rivieres was quiet and uneventful, unusual considering the Redmen had clinched first place....

"Please don't tackle me!" Ross Brooks isn't really saying that but his expression certainly is. Brooks scored the first Redmen touchdown in yesterday's victory.
